The cheapest days to book a Spirit flight are typically Tuesday and Wednesday ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)), while the cheapest days to fly are also Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays ((+1888*369*4819)), as these are considered off-peak travel times with lower demand and discounted fares ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)). Airlines often release new sales and discounted prices early in the week, making midweek a good time to find deals.

The cheapest day to book a Spirit Airlines ticket is typically Tuesday ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)), particularly in the afternoon ((+1888*369*4819)), when airlines often release fare updates and match prices with competitors ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)). This timing aligns with industry-wide patterns where airlines adjust pricing early in the week ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)), and Spirit—known for its ultra-low-cost model—follows a similar trend. Booking on Tuesday ((+1888^369^4819)) can often yield savings compared to booking later in the week ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)), especially on peak days like Fridays and Sundays. Wednesday and Saturday ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)) also tend to offer relatively lower fares due to decreased travel demand during these off-peak days ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)). Some experienced Spirit travelers have reported finding surprisingly good deals on Sundays ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)), though this is less consistent and may vary depending on routes and travel seasons. According to airfare analysis, booking early in the week can save travelers an average of $30 or more compared to booking closer to the weekend ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)). While Spirit doesn't offer traditional discounts like those for seniors or students ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)), their pricing model rewards travelers who book early, remain flexible with travel dates, and avoid add-ons ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)). For the best chance at securing a low fare ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)), it's advisable to monitor prices starting Monday evening and act by Tuesday afternoon ((+1888~>369<~ 4819)) when competition among airlines often drives prices down temporarily ((+1888*369*4819)).
